FORTY YEARS OF PROGRESS

Home Demonstration Clubs
Of Georgia Celebrating
Anniversary April 29-May 5

If it is true that life begins at 40, then Home Demonstration Clubs in Georgia are more youngsters with worlds ahead of them yet to conquer. Miss Eddy Ross, state home demonstration leader, Agricultural Extension Service, says:

The report shows that the Agricultural Extension Service in Georgia was inaugurated by the State College of Agriculture in 1908. The first extension work consisted of an educational train which made a tour of the state, visiting every county having a railroad. "This awakened such interest in agricultural education as to influence the next session of the Georgia state legislature to make the first appropriation for extension teaching amounting to $10,000. In 1911 the appropriation was increased to $40,000 enabling extension to include nine more phases of farm life, including home economics."

By 1916 there were 16 field specialists, 84 district and county agents, and 49 agents in home economics. The passage of the Smith-Lever act in 1914, making available federal funds to be matched by state funds, gave extension work a great impetus, the report says.

In the beginning it was thought best to carry on work only with gifts of early tomato canning clubs. According to the 1916 report, this was so successful that farm women everywhere began clamoring for help. The purpose of the early clubs was the same in theory as it is today, "building and introducing labor-saving devices and connected."

"It is thought best to teach the construction and thorough use of one of these devices at a time," the report states. A campaign for building and using food canners resulted in more than 500 of them being put into use on farms. When warm weather came on, the work of building iceless refrigerators was taken up along with the methods of handling milk and butter. Another campaign receiving attention was the home-made water works of which about 75 were reported in 1916.

Agents traveled some 94,000 miles in 1915-16 by rail and by auto. They visited about 8,000 homes and conducted some 3,000 meetings with an attendance of about 85,000 members. Almost 15,000 bulletins were distributed and 13,000 letters were sent out.

"Although we are not as concerned with figures as in the good the work accomplishes for the rural family, a look at the 1965 annual report provides an accurate picture of the growth of home demonstration work," Miss Ross states.

Home demonstration agents made 234,713 visits; held 4,368 training meetings with an attendance of 68,595; 569,734 bulletins were distributed, and 20,672 adult result demonstrations were given.

"Selecting just a few figures from the annual report will show the scope of work accomplished through the Home Demonstration Clubs during 1965," Miss Ross says. More than 12,000 families remodeled or repaired their homes; 2,800 improved kitchens and 12,338 improved storage space. Home demonstration agents assisted 25,231 families with child development and guidance; 68,154 with clothing construction, and 41,337 with food preservation and storage.

The winners of the 1965 Statesboro Elks Lodge scholarship were honored at a luncheon held in the lodge's dining room. Nominations for a boy and a girl award winner are received from the schools in Bulloch, Evans, Candler, Jenkins, Effingham, Screven counties. Miss Charlotte Blitch and Julian Deal were named to get a $100.00 scholarship. Indications are Bull County farmers generally were at one of their lowest ebb last week at all the Farm Bureau meetings.

Everyone had a "replanting" story and many had replanted some parts of their crops as many as three times. A lot of the fellows were buying tobacco plants, at a cost of some $10 to $20 per acre for each setting. Adding this together about three or four times just about figured out all the income from the crop.

in it and generally of a better quality. Plans for these barns are available in the county agent's office.

Carlton Kirby, assistant county agent, demonstrated the use of the wet-bulb hygrometer at Register on Thursday night, that helps to take the guess work out of curing tobacco. It tells when to lower and increase the ventilation. These thermometers are now available locally, he stated.

He pointed out that it was recommended for curing ripe mature bright leaf tobacco, barn ventilation be controlled to provide during the following stages a wet-bulb temperature of not less than 90 degrees F. and not more than 95 degrees when dry-bulb is 100 degrees; and during the critical leaf drying stage at wet-bulb temperature of 100 degrees, plus or minus three degrees, irrespective of the dry-bulb temperature which is progressing normally. When the tobacco leaf is dry barn ventilator may be closed for stem drying. During the stem drying stage wet-bulb temperature is not important. This control will minimize the tendency of tobacco to darken and lose quality from excessive humidity in relation to leaf temperature in curing. Ample ventilation capacity and following this procedure will normally permit yielding to extent necessary to minimize "setting" of greenish color in mature ripe tobacco leaves.

Automatic ventilation has been proven and should, in time, be adopted generally. In the time tobacco farmers will realize considerable profit through use of the hygrometer and manually controlled curing barn ventilation.

Mrs. Tommie Cannady was named community Red Cross chairman at Edin, Mrs. V. J. Rowe was named at Nevels and Reginald Anderson of Register, Rayford W. Williams, county rural chairman visited at all three meetings last week.

Nevels voted to hold their queen and talent contest at their May 16 meeting. R. L. Roberts has charge of the May program. Howard Cox was in charge of the April program.

Register voted to start meeting at 8 p.m.

Bobby Sasser, Swainsboro, and Ed Haire, Claxton, were visitors at Nevels.

Miss Henrietta Hall, county Farm Bureau women chairman has expressed the belief that the county queen and talent contests can be held in June this year. The county winner will not be reported until October 15, but several groups have asked Miss Hall to hold the county contests this spring in that they will not be holding some of their summer meetings.

FORESTRY NEWS

Paul L. Moore, County Forest Ranger Phone 4-2042

Ranger Paul L. Moore, of the Bulloch County Forestry Unit recommended that Bulloch County be aware of careless and indiscriminate burning which may result in disastrous fires similar to those witnessed in the state last week.

Guyton DeLoach, Georgia Forestry Commission Director, said that losses from uncontrolled wild fires in Southeast Georgia alone last week were estimated to be more than 15,000 acres, with monetary damages running into thousands of dollars. Personnel and equipment from the Georgia Forestry Commission were sent from all over the state to help check these uncontrolled fires which were plaguing Georgia's valuable timberland. Help also came from many woodland industries in the surrounding areas of this vast fire.

One State truck, tractor and a house were burned in this ravaging fire and a patrol plane flying for the Georgia Forestry Commission crashed, killing the pilot.

"Remember," Ranger Moore said, "disastrous fires like those in Southeast Georgia could happen to you here in Bulloch County. Use discrimination when you decide to burn off your woods and respect your neighbors' woods and property. One little spark out of hand can mean an uncontrollable wild-fire. Carelessness with fire in any form is always a potential threat to all and one which Bulloch County should take extra care to prevent."

SOIL AND WATER CONSERVATION

By E. T. ("Red") Mullis

Heavy rains of recent date have helped our ponds out considerably. Bud Barnes and Bill Bowen have just about got a head of water on their ponds just east of Statesboro on the Oliver Road.

Heavy winds continue to do a lot of damage to crops over the county. Arthur James Riggs of Register says this crop has cost him more so far this year than any previous crop. Planting over is always expensive, but this year it has been very widespread and our farmers are all off to a very expensive crop year. Arthur James says he plans to do differently in the future, however. He plans to plant those blowing fields down in Sorghum lespedeza for pasture, hay and seed. He thinks this will solve a lot of expensive problems with row-crops.

Mr. Wilton Hodges thinks a lot of Pensacola Bahia grass for pasture on his farm west of Statesboro. "I'm getting a lot of grazing from it now," he commented.
